FLOYD HEWETT MUST DIE ON JANUARY 6

Navy Prepares To Raise Its Dead

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., Dec. 22.—The navy today set about raising its dead in the hull of the submarine S-4.

Streams of oxygen continued to pour into the torpedo compartment of the sunken undersea vessel where once six survivors of the crew of forty had pleaded in messages for air.

But silence reigned within, although the divers have clanged with hammers a claxon call that help was finally come upon the slimy steel exterior of the submarine. There is only the tapping and lapping of the waves to answer.

Forty-eight, or even twenty-four hours ago, this flow of air would have provided a nectar drink to the six sailors who once lived.

The forcing of oxygen into the S-4—a feat performed for the first time in the history of marine rescue operations—has been going on since ten o'clock last night.

C. H. Scott, the last diver down, returned to the surface at three o'clock this morning. He reported, as did his comrades who preceded him, that there was no sign of life within the crypt steel. The submarine tender Falcon oscillated to the S-4 through the night but received no answering signals.

Shortly after seven o'clock this morning divers resumed operations, making a survey of conditions near the bow of the S-4 and preparing to an attempt to attack pontoons to raise the forward part.

The weather continues favorable despite a persisting storm warning.

A northeast wind is blowing but the water is calm enough to permit diving operations.

Divers reported today that there is less mud around the submarine's bow than they expected and if fair weather continues, pontoons will be immediately adjusted to each end of a chain slung below the S-4's hull.

The adjustment of the pontoons and subsequent raising operations will take two days under the most favorable conditions, Lieutenant Commander Edward Ellsberg, directing the salvage work, told International News Service today.

Under a sky powdered with stars, the salvage fleet worked throughout the night. At dawn, the double hose attached to the S-4 tube of the S-4's torpedo compartment was still throbbing oxygen into the chamber of death.

"If there is any life left on board the S-4 we hope that the fresh air being supplied may revive any who still lives but may be unconscious," said Lieutenant Commander Ellsberg.

Ellsberg estimated that four hours of pumping should resuscitate an unconscious man. More than double that time has elapsed and there has been no message received from inside the sub. However, it was admitted that the victims might be in such a mental and physical condition that they would be unable to signal.

It was "Tug" Wilson and Joe Elben, working in the icy depths from nine o'clock until ten thirty o'clock last night, who attached the air line to the T-shaped "blister" on the hull of the submarine.

The S-4 submarine communication tubes are used for oscillating purposes. The success of the air-supplying measure depended upon whether or not the crew within had left the inner valve open.

The divers determined that this valve must have been left open and that oxygen was going into the inside of the torpedo room through reading the gauge attached to the air hose. The reading showed that two pounds pressure of air was pouring through the hull. This was raised eventually to twelve pounds pressure when another air line was attached to the second vent of the S-4 tube by diver Tom Eadie at 11:45 p. m.

ACTION BY DONAHAY YOUTH'S LAST HOPE TO ESCAPE PENALTY

Double Killer May Be Youngest Ever Elec- trocuted Here

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 22.—Seventeen year old Floyd Hewitt must die in the electric chair at Ohio penitentiary January 6, as atonement for killing Mrs. Celia Brown and her five year old son, Fred, Jr., in Conneaut, last February.

The Ohio supreme court, which yesterday refused to review Hewitt's case, today set January 6 as the date for his execution.

Hewitt's only chance of escaping the electric chair now is intervention by Governor Donahay. Unless the governor takes action, the youth will be led to the death chamber just two weeks from tomorrow and will be the youngest person ever electrocuted in Ohio and the second youngest ever executed in the United States.

BILL FROM RANSOM PACKAGE ACCEPTED FOR SMALL PURCHASE

Number On $20 Bill Shifts Chase To Washington Metropolis—Other Clues Lead Outside Cal- ifornia—Suspect Ends Life

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 22.—Here are the latest developments in the sensational search for William Edward Hickman, accused kidnaper-slayer of 12-year-old Marion Parker.

The gigantic manhunt suddenly swings toward Seattle. On report that Hickman purchased a pair of black gloves and winter underwear in the Washington city with a $20-bill from the pack of marked ransom money.

Mistaken for "the Fox," 18-year-old Ralph McCoy, robber suspect, is found hanged in the Los Angeles city jail after being rescued from an infuriated mob.

The fugitive Hickman reported "seen" in six other cities outside the state of California.

Hickman reported trapped in Santa Ana canyon in an attempted dash to the Mexican border.

"The Fox" reported to have slipped into sheep's clothing and wearing either a woman's disguise or to have dyed his hair blonde.

OFFICIAL INVESTIGATION OF SUB DISASTER ON JANUARY 4

Rear Admiral Richard H. Jackson To Conduct Naval Inquiry—Congress May Launch Separate Probe

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—The Navy's official investigation into the S-4 disaster will get under way in Boston on Jan. 4.

An order issued by Secretary of the Navy Wilbur designated Rear Admiral Richard H. Jackson to head the court of inquiry, which will consist of Rear Admiral Julian Latimer, Capt. Joseph V. Ogan, and Commander L. E. Bratton, a submarine expert. The court will meet at Boston navy yard on January 4 and "thoroughly investigate all the circumstances in connection with the S-4 tragedy as well as seek to determine responsibility therefor."

Meanwhile, it is probable that congress will initiate an investigation of its own when the holiday recess is ended on January 4.

There are now three separate resolutions in the house asking such a probe by congress, and Senator Walsh (D) of Massachusetts is planning to introduce a resolution in the senate asking that not only the S-4 disaster but all the serious naval disasters since the war.

The house resolutions have been sponsored by Rep. Griffin (D) and Rep. Black (D) of New York, and Rep. Serger (R) of New Jersey. Griffin and Black both want the investigation to go into the navy's lack of safety appliances, such as they say are in use by foreign navies.

BOSTON, Dec. 22.—As the pumped air was making the torpedo room of the sunken submarine S-4 "breathe" early today, Commander E. S. R. Brant of the U. S. S. Sturtevant, just back from Cape Cod, stated that it was the general belief that the crew were dead. The expectation was he added, that all attempts to lift the S-4 probably would be abandoned within forty-eight hours and that he believed the sunken undersea craft would not be raised before May.

WHERE CHILD'S BODY WAS DELIVERED

Crowds at Los Angeles, Cal., gathered about the spot where the kidnaper-murderer of Marion Parker laid the body of the girl on the lawn a block from where he collected $15,000 ransom from her father, Perry Parker, who was unaware that his child was dead.

REFUGEES FROM DRY LAW DESIRE RETURN BEFORE CHRISTMAS

Homesickness Pushes Personal Liberty In Background

PARIS, Dec. 22.—American "refugees from the Volstead law" have been overcome with sentiment and a desire to return to their homes for Christmas.

The American Aid Society during past weeks has helped to repatriate eighty-four stranded Americans, all confessing a sentimental dread of spending the holidays away from their homes. Each case was one that previously had preferred to live in a country "where there is no legislative curtailment of personal liberty," according to Miss Henriette Meyer, secretary of the society.

"They seem to have become quickly fed up with this particular freedom they desired so earnestly erstwhile," said Miss Meyer. "Not one could be encouraged to stick it out a while longer. The approach of Christmas has brought to them a powerful wave of homesickness. It was useless to mention the jolly Christmas trees and parties planned here in Paris by the American Legion and the two American churches and the Salvation army. They all wanted to get home. All of those who want to get home for Christmas won't be there."

It is not difficult to pick up a hard luck tale from stranded Americans in Paris these days. Some of them come from students, some from those who came to France to live on fixed incomes and over-see their allowances, and a few who came here to earn a living and found that it was difficult for any but a Frenchman to get employment in Paris.

YOU BEAUTIFUL DOLL BERLIN, Dec. 22.—Clarence Chamberlin, the trans-Atlantic flyer, is the first American ever to be immortalized as a German doll. Thousands of tiny, saw- dust figures labeled "Chamber- lin" are sitting this Christmas in the cockpits of toy airplanes called "Miss Columbia." It looks as if no German child will be content unless his gifts include this reminder of the Chamber- lin-Levine flight to Germany.

WOULD CONTROL PRIMARY Vote Before Next Election

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—A drive for a new corrupt practices act by which congress would assume statutory control of congressional primaries before the 1928 campaigns get under way, has been launched by Senator Kenneth McKellar (D) of Tennessee.

McKellar announced today he would seek action early in the new year on his bill, drafted to meet the objections raised by the supreme court in the Newberry case. His measure would place strict limits on the amounts of money to be expended by candidates for either the house or senate in either their primary or election campaigns.

The bill would specify that a "primary or election convention is hereby declared a part of and inseparably connected with the election machinery by which candidates may be elected to the house of representatives under the constitution—(or) to the senate under the seventeenth amendment."

The bill would force all primary or election candidates for congress to file expenditure reports both before and after their contests and would carry all the old restrictions relative to promising offices to supporters. It would invoke new limits though on the amounts allowed various candidates as campaign funds.

MORE THAN 650,000 VETERANS FACE LOSS OF SOLDIER BONUS

Eligibles Must File Applications Before January 1 Unless Congress Grants Extension— One Bill Rejected

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—More than 650,000 World War veterans are facing the loss of their legal right to claim the soldier's bonus, with the time limit for filing applications expiring on January 1, 1928, and congress in adjournment for the holidays until January 4.

The forgetful veterans have two chances. They may file applications in the eight remaining days or depend on congress to pass a new bill giving them more time.

Whether congress will extend the time limit, after the veterans have had several years in which to obtain the adjusted compensation certificates of insurance is problematical.

Rep. Green, (R) of Iowa, chairman of the house ways and means committee, declared today that it was still possible for legislative action after the holidays.

"I don't know whether I would favor extending the time or not, there already has been ample time," he said.

The ways and means committee rejected a plea by Rep. Connery (D) of Massachusetts, to push through a time extension bill before the holiday adjournment.

Actually, according to records of the army, navy, and marine corps, there were today 671,517 veterans out of more than 4,000,000 men who served in the World War who have failed to seek the bonus. Applications are still being received by the war department at the rate of 1,400 a day.

COLUMBIA PLANS TO BUY CITIES SERVICE COMPANY HOLDINGS

Ohio Fuel Gas May Add Number Of Ohio Companies

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 22.—Purchase of practically all the oil and gas holdings of the Cities Service Company, in Ohio, by the Columbia Gas and Electric Company, of New York, at a consideration of approximately $11,000,000, was being considered by the state utilities commission today. Application for the proposed merger was filed with the utilities commission late yesterday.

The Ohio Fuel Gas Company, of Columbus, a subsidiary of the Columbia Gas and Electric Company, seeks to acquire the following companies, all of which are subsidiaries of the Cities Service, of New York, controlled by H. L. Doherty: Toledo-Edison Company, Toledo; Empire Gas and Fuel Company, Wooster; Atlas Chemical Company, Toledo; and the Anchor Realty Company, Toledo.

All oil and gas properties of the five companies would go to purchasing company if the merger is approved. These include about 360 miles of gas mains and 170,000 acres of oil and gas lands.

KING GEORGE SENDS SYMPATHY MESSAGE

LONDON, Dec. 22.—King George sent a message to President Coolidge today expressing grief over the S-4 disaster. The message, which was given out by the foreign office, follows:

"I am much grieved at the sad disaster to the United States navy through the sinking of the submarine S-4 involving so great a loss of life. I desire to assure you and the American people and more especially the bereaved families of my heartfelt sympathy in their national calamity."

BRITAIN WILL NOT INCREASE NAVY IS ASSURANCE OF KING

Speech To Parliament Regrets Failure At Geneva

LONDON, Dec. 22.—In his speech proroguing parliament today King George gave assurances to the empire and the world that Great Britain has no intention of embarking upon a naval building program, despite the failure of the Geneva conference for limitation of navy armaments.

After referring to the steady growth of the League of Nations, King George expressed regret that the Geneva conference had not reached any general agreement not entering upon a program of naval expansion the king reiterated statements previously made by government officials.

Referring to the Geneva conference the king said:

"The delegates of my government put forward proposals for limitation of armaments, which, if accepted, would have led to substantial reductions in naval strength and costs."

"I regret that, though such an extensive community of viewpoint was revealed, it was impossible to reach a general agreement. But, despite this temporary failure, my government has no intention of embarking upon an increase in their naval building program which is based upon the considered view as to defensive needs of my widespread empire."

SMITH HAS REPORT ON SANITY FINDING

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 22.—Governor Smith today had before him a report of the state board of alienists declaring Mrs. Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray sane.

The report was made to the governor after the alienists had made an exhaustive examination. Both are scheduled to die in the electric chair January 12 for the murder of Mrs. Snyder's husband, Albert Snyder, Queens County art editor.

While refusing to discuss the report, Governor Smith indicated that he would soon announce the date for the clemency hearing for Mrs. Snyder and Gray. This is expected to take place two or three days before the date of the execution.

Having been declared sane, the last hope Mrs. Snyder and Gray have of escaping the electric chair is clemency by Governor Smith, it was declared today at the capital.

DE FOREST'S TRUST CHARGE AGAINST R. C. A. BEING HEARD

WILMINGTON, Del., Dec. 22.—Argument in the case of the De Forest Radio Corporation against the Radio Corporation of America for alleged violation of the Sherman anti-trust law is scheduled to be heard before Judge Hugh M. Morris, in U. S. district court here today.

John W. Davis, former Democratic candidate for president, will represent the Radio Corporation of America and Samuel A. Darby, Jr., New York, will appear for the De Forest Corporation.

Argument will be on the bill filed here asking for a preliminary injunction to restrain the RCA from making a monopoly of the radio business and also asks for an accounting of profits.

The bill alleges unfair competition on the part of the Radio Corporation of America. It also charges that RCA conspired to secure a monopoly of radio receiving sets by having itself appointed agent for the sale of "electronic," "audion," and "vacuum" radio tubes, which are an indispensable part of the radio receiving set. It is claimed that De Forest first introduced these tubes.

KIDNAPING STORY DOUBTED BY POLICE

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 22.—Some doubt was raised today regarding the story told by Ella Elcher, 13-year-old McKeesport high school girl, that she had been kidnapped, drugged, and held prisoner in an Ohio city.

Stella Baker, of Connellsville, life-long friend of the Elcher girl, told authorities she had seen her missing friend last Monday in Cleveland, and that when she had denied her identity, had threatened to tell her father.

Mathew Elcher, the girl's uncle, and with whom she had been living, told authorities she still was in a serious mental condition, and he had no reason to believe she had "faked" her kidnapping story.

SELECT PLANS

GENEVA, Dec. 22.—The plans of Henri Noyat, a French architect, for the League of Nations building have been selected from 900 sets submitted. The League building committee announced this afternoon. They will be slightly modified to provide for the library for which John D. Rockefeller, Jr., recently donated $2,000,000.

HELD FOR MURDER

BASKETS FOR NEEDY

GLOUSTER, Ohio, Dec. 22.—Every charitable organization in the Hocking Valley today had begun distributing baskets of food for Christmas in the homes of needy coal miners, many of whom have been without employment since the present coal strike began last April. It is expected that about 500 families will be thus helped. In some places, serving of soup dinners started yesterday.

WHAT IS A DEMOCRAT- AND PERHAPS WHERE?

WASHINGTON, Dec. 22.—Congress is faced with the question of deciding what constitutes a true and tried Democrat.

This perplexing problem must be solved before Sam Pickard, of Kansas, is confirmed as a minority member of the federal radio commission.

The circumstances, as disclosed today, are as follows:

Mr. Pickard, thirty two years old, was a combat aviator in the American expeditionary forces during the World War, and wears a silver insignia of those veterans who were wounded in action with the enemy.

His appointment by President Coolidge, as a Democratic member of the radio commission, was sponsored by Senator Curtis and Senator Capper, both Republicans, of Kansas and Secretary of Agriculture Jardine, causing some of the Democratic members of the interstate commerce committee of the senate, to question Pickard's Democracy.

While technically holding legal residence in Kansas Pickard has not resided there since the war.

Owing to his age, prior to the outbreak of hostilities, Pickard never had an opportunity to vote nor to officially express his political preference. After the war he came to Washington with the agricultural department, and since that time never has registered nor voted.

SHE LAUGHS AT SANTA CLAUS

Miss Rose O'Neill

By ALEXANDER C. HERMAN
Staff Writer for Central Press and
The Gazette

SAUGATUCK, Conn., Dec. 22.—Santa Claus' sister (really young enough to be his grandchild) can give Old Knick the laugh. For her job is done—while his can't begin until Christmas eve.

But that is the way of Miss Rose O'Neill. She always keeps one step ahead of the next fellow—and achieves success while the other merely dreams of it.

In case you don't know it: Miss O'Neill is the creator of the Kewpie. And the Kewpie (if you are out of touch with childhood) is the soft, floppy little tike who spreads cheer wherever it goes in its doll-like way.

Keeps Fifty Factories Busy
Miss O'Neill got the idea some eighteen years ago. Since then hundreds of thousands of her children have gone to all corners of the earth. Fifty factories were kept busy turning them out at one time.

And the result has been fame and fortune—in keeping with a real fairy-tale ending. The originator has a magnificent home here, another in the Ozarks (where she was reared) and a villa in Capri, Italy.

But this monetary success has not spoiled the creator from designing new favorites, writing novels and plays, composing music, painting, modeling. She is at heart a poet. And she tells of Kewpie (whose grandpa was Cupid) thus:—

They're "Kewpies," shprt for "Cupid," thus
They're shorter than that famous cuss,
Their little tummies are more dumpy,
Their general aspect much more plump.

They look like ordinary Cupids. As nothing more than little stupids:
For they are always working double.

To get poor people into trouble:
The Kewpies' one idea is: "Let 'em out!"

By hook, or crook, or crowbar, get 'em out!"

(And don't dawdle about it!)
Miss O'Neill originally was an illustrator. At the end of each of her drawings, she worked in a little motif based on Cupid. This caught the attention of some famous editor. And he requested her to do a whole page of drawings on the little philosophers.

Philosophical "Grin"
This was eighteen years ago. And the page still runs regularly in one of the most famous monthlies.

She never seems to tire of the Kewpies. And she never seems to run out of new antics for them.

"The softness of his person," says his creator, "expresses the softness of his philosophy—and the kink in his philosophy is in the grin and his selfish little eye. In a word: his philosophy is 'kindness with a kink.'"

Whatever it is—Miss O'Neill has put the idea over, and has made herself—and her dolls—solid with children all over the world.

"Why the Chimes Rang," a beautiful play and pageant, to be presented at the First M. E. Pendry, William Horner, Carl Pramer, W. C. Warwick and C. A. Bone. Miss Elsie Canby is in charge of the direction.

The play is based on an ancient legend of a period many, many years ago and is particularly appropriate to the Christmas season and spirit.

Proceeding the presentation of the play, the choir of the church will render Christmas carols and Miss Leona Keller will give a special solo number.

The public is cordially invited, there being no admission charge or collection.

Meanwhile, the County Health League is going ahead with negotiations for a large number of the best school seals obtainable, and at the annual meeting at the Court House Thursday evening, will present plans for holding clinics early in 1928 at Osborn, Yellow Springs, Cedarville, Ross Twp. and Bowersville, where competent records of pupils' weight are already available.

Then he accepted a position with the Georgia Baptist Convention and for four years traveled over the state in the interest of Christian education.

In 1913 he entered Rochester Theological Seminary, Rochester, N. Y., at which institution he graduated in 1916, having served the church located in Cincinnati, where he has spent nearly ten years, having served the First Baptist Church, Madisonville and later the Mt. Carmel Baptist Church, Deer Park. He still holds a chaplaincy in the army.

The Rev. Mr. Lunsford and his family have been given a cordial welcome by the church and the church is looking forward to what is believed to be a period of growth and achievement.

SLEEPER HURT WHEN BUILDING WRECKED

MASSILLON, Ohio, Dec. 22.—Working on the theory that dynamite may have caused the explosion that wrecked the two story Leindecker office building here last night with damage estimated at $25,000, police today were holding Edward Kneffler and Margaret Brown for questioning. James Mayhew, 40, who slept in the building, was slightly injured when the roof was blown in and the front wall collapsed.

It was at first believed that escaping gas caused the explosion, but further examination disclosed no trace of fumes.

The detonation was felt for several blocks, and many windows were broken in adjoining buildings.

RUNNER AMONG 11 WHO PERISH IN FIRE

WARSAW, Dec. 22.—Eleven persons including Alfred Freyer, Poland's crack Olympic sprinter, were killed in a fire early today, which destroyed the ancient castle of Count Zdzislaw at Dzikow, near Jaroslau. Eleven persons were injured. The castle contained the most famous picture gallery in Poland. A Rembrandt and other canvases by old masters were burned.

Farm Notes

FEEDING DAIRY CALVES

The feeding and management of dairy calves is important if good dairy cows are to be produced, says W. E. Krauss, assistant in dairying at the Ohio Experiment Station, in outlining a plan for growing heifers.

"The first essential," he says, "is that a good start be made by feeding the colostrum. This should be followed for at least two weeks by whole milk. Skim milk may then gradually replace the whole milk, taking a week or ten days to make the change.

"When a calf meal gruel is to be fed, whole milk should be continued for at least four weeks before a gradual change to gruel is made.

"In order to make calves grow rapidly with good bone formation the ration must contain feeds which supply growth-promoting factors and minerals. The best roughage for this purpose is second or third cutting of alfalfa or second cutting of clover. Since calves have a tendency to consume too much legume hay at the beginning, it is better to start them on mixed hay and change over to legume hay entirely later."

A grain mixture of 300 parts corn meal, 100 parts bran, 100 parts oil meal, and 1 per cent salt has proved very successful in raising calves with the skim milk method in the station herd.

Another grain mixture which has given excellent results is 200 parts ground oats, 300 yellow corn meal or hominy, 300 bran and 100 oil meal.

With good feeding and care, Dr. Krauss says, Holstein heifer calves should weigh 250 pounds and Jerseys 260 pounds at six months of age.

TWO NEW CHAMPIONS

Announcement has just been made by The Holstein-Friesian Association of America of two new state champion Holsteins in Ohio. P. O. Andonourine Wayne owned by W. W. Robinson, Wauseon, Ohio is the new champion for the state in the classification "A" of the ten months division for full aged cows. In ten months she produced 20,395 pounds of milk containing 825 pounds of butterfat.

G. W. Lund, Norwalk, Ohio, is the owner of the state champion senior two-year old Holstein in classification "C" of the yearly division. Ramona Payne Pontiac is her name and her yearly record, which entitles her to be state champion in her class, is 16,401 pounds of milk, 530 pounds of butterfat.

In an address before the Women's Athletic Association, of Wittenberg, Strobel declared that, "in Germany it is very common to see women dancing gracefully who weigh from 180 to 250 pounds."

GERMAN FRAULEINS GRACEFUL DANCERS IN SPITE OF SIZE

At balls he attended Strobel says he was somewhat apprehensive at the thought of guiding 200 pounds of femininity over a crowded dance floor. But in most instances it was no trick at all, he declares, due to the fact that despite their generous proportions the German flappers are quite graceful.

"All of the German forms of women's athletics stress rhythm and grace rather than physical strength," Strobel pointed out. "This is readily understood when it is remembered that the German women have great muscular strength acquired by manual labor."

CONVENTIONS TO START NEXT WEEK

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 22.—Annual conventions of the American Psychological Association and the organic division of the American Chemical Society, will be held on the campus of Ohio State University for three days starting December 28.

More than 100 scientists are on the programs of the two conferences. Between 300 and 400 psychologists and chemists are expected to attend the two sessions. Prof. H. L. Hollingworth, of Columbia University, the retiring president of the Psychological Association, will preside at the opening meeting of that body, December 28.

CHURCH WORKER IS SHOT BY FARMER

NELSONVILLE, O., Dec. 22.—Police here today were questioning several men from Beaumont, a nearby village, where Miss Irene McDowell, church missionary in the mining camps of this vicinity, was shot and painfully wounded last night. Miss McDowell had stopped her car because of ice on the road when someone fired at her with a shotgun, about a half-dozen shot lodging in the back of her head. It is believed a farmer mistook her for a thief. Miss McDowell's condition is not believed serious.

I Have Said in My Heart

By IDAH MCGLOONE GIBSON ALCOHOL

Some writer in a New York newspaper has made the assertion that the Volstead act has taken more laughter out of the world than tears.

For this reason he pleads that men and women should be allowed to get drunk if they choose—that they should be allowed to laugh—even when there is nothing to laugh at—even when laughter is but an empty sound.

Goldsmith wrote many years ago of "the loud laugh that speaks the vacant mind." (I am quoting from memory, and consequently cannot be absolutely sure of my authority, but the sense is near enough to express my meaning.)

Certainly one feels rather ashamed one belongs to the human family when one sees a lot of drunken men and women making fools of themselves in a public place. I confess I care too much for my brain to muddle it with alcohol, and I care too much for my stomach to eat its lining out with alcohol.

Most of the men whom I knew in my girlhood are dead today.

Brilliant minds, splendid physiques, wonderful courage and hearts that beat with high hopes and ideals; I can count over a score of these men who today would be no older than I, if they were alive, and they have all succumbed to disease that might be directly attributed to alcohol.

These men loved life. They loved their friends—not one of them did not try to make the world a more joyous place—but they made the greatest mistake of thinking that they must always have the help of John Barleycorn to take them on the road to joy and laughter.

Today all these men—men of wealth, men of brain, men of wit and culture—are dead; some of them left behind poverty and disgrace. They quaffed the laughter at the brim of the cup, but those they really loved and should have pro-teected are today drinking the lees of tears that always remain in the cup of the drunkard.

It is a rather sad thing that those who insist that King Alcohol brings laughter to his votaries are not apt to see the tears of those they have forsaken at his command. When an apparently staid editorial writer makes, on the editorial page of a paper, a statement like that I quoted at the beginning of this little screed, it seems to me someone should take him to interview the widows of the men who have succumbed to drink. He should be made to feed and clothe the little stunted creatures that have been forgotten by these men.

Memo: It is better that we never laugh if that laugh is at the expense of the tears of someone else.

LAKE FISHING NOT WHAT IT USED TO BE

TOLEDO, O., Dec. 21.—Weather-beaten fishermen who tend their nets off the shores of Lake Erie say that fishing is not what it used to be.

Now the United States government reports that they are right. Fishing is not what it used to be. A serious scarcity of fish is reported in a recent bulletin.

Fishermen here, at Port Clinton, Sandusky, and other lake towns in the state of the country say that the season just closed has been the worst in their memory. That partly has been due to weather conditions.

The situation already has led to the calling of several conferences in which the problems were discussed by Canadian, Ohio, Michigan and other lake state officials.

INTRICATE TOYS ANSWER THE DEMAND OF MODERN YOUNGSTERS

No longer are the boys and girls satisfied to receive only a drum or a china doll on Christmas morning. Little Johnnie or Robert must have a toy automobile like father's and little Mary must have a real honest to goodness infant baby doll in a doll carriage that has all of the improvements shown on the newer baby carriages. The boys of today are demanding and are getting toys that are exact duplications of the things they use every day. Miniature steam shovels, cranes, electric trains that are the last word in modern efficiency, and a host of construction toys with which the boy can make a variety of scientific and useful toys for himself. The boy four years old is satisfied with a look and ladder wagon of cast iron which he draws along the floor, but the boy of ten years has a beautifully painted red automobile truck with cranks which elevate several feet of ladder and which supplies a realistic hose long enough to satisfy even the most daring fireman. The demand for toys, local dealers point out, is increasing to such an extent, rather than decreasing, that all manner of stores are adding this department at Christmas time. They say it used to be a great problem to find toys for boys other than dolls but now several manufacturers are devoting their entire factory to the making of exclusive toys for girls. Many of these displayed are along the line of kitchen implements and furniture. A well constructed kitchen cabinet, complete with groceries, dishes and other implements of cooking, delights the heart of the girl who watches her mother cook. A vacuum cleaner takes up the dirt brought in by her brothers and she can prepare meals on the coal range, an electric range or a gas stove as she chooses. A table with drop leaves is used to serve after-ago for the modern American doll is more skillfully designed and has a greater appeal. Some of the stores enlarged their departments this year in order to take advantage of the demand for toys. The toy department is rapidly taking the place of the circus as a place where the busy man goes with his children "just to show the kids the animals." The program also included violin selections by Catherine Maxwell, accompanied by Erma Van Horn at the piano; a speech of welcome by Lois Bradley; scripture reading by John Maxwell and group singing of several Christmas songs. Miss Clara Martin's classroom group of pupils sang several Christmas carols. JUNIOR HIGH GIVES CHRISTMAS PARTY WANT MA TOO A Christmas program, designed and participated in entirely by students of Central Junior High School, featured a junior high assembly in Jean B. Elwell Auditorium early Thursday morning. A playlet, directed by Naomi Henkel, a student, was the principal feature. Students taking part in the play were Catherine Keller, Jewel and Evelyn Osman, Ruth Ann Jenkins, Velda Jones, Anita Price, Leona Middleton, Anna Hardy, Dorothy Ireton, and Mabel Smith. PANAMA CITY, Panama, Dec. 22.—Panama wants Mrs. Lindbergh to accompany her famous son when he makes his flight here. President Chiari today cabled Mrs. Lindbergh urging her to repeat a visit made to Panama in 1914 when she came with her then little known son.

COUNTY TO IMPROVE TWO INTER-COUNTY HIGHWAYS; ASK AID

County Commissioners, in resolutions adopted Wednesday, authorized the filing of applications with the state highway department for state financial aid for the proposed maintenance and repair of portions of Inter-County Highways No. 473 and 472 in Greene County. I. C. H. No. 473, the Jamestown-Bowersville Pike, is to be repaired at an estimated cost of $12,000, one-half of the expense, or $6,000, to constitute the county's share. Grading and surfacing with gravel or stone and surface treating and the extension of culverts is contemplated for both roads. Eight miles of the Jamestown-Bowersville Pike will be repaired, beginning at the junction of this road and the Clinton-Greene County line, and extending north in Jefferson and Silvercreek Twp.s, to the corporation line, with the exception of the village of Bowersville. The I. C. H. No. 472 improvement will extend north a distance of four miles in Cedarville and Miami Twp.s, beginning at the north corporation line of Cedarville, and ending at the south corporation line at Clifton.

SURVEY BASED ON RETAIL SALES INDICATES PROSPEROUS 1928

By W. S. COUSINS

I. N. S. Financial Editor

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—Many of the business and financial experts to the record of retail merchandise sales as the most accurate and reliable of the so-called business barometers, for the reason that purchases of goods by the American people reflect the condition of the pocketbook, and the bank balance. These, in turn, assure the aggregate income of wage earners, behind which stand corporations, the banks, the broad companies and the whole mechanism of national business.

Based on past performances and a firm position of strategic security of American industry, H. T. Parson, the president of F. W. Woolworth Company, makes an optimistic survey of the business situation for International News Service today. Mr. Parson cites the expansion of the volume of sales of the Woolworth organization from $239,000,000 in 1925 to $275,000,000 in 1927, and the expectation of a further increase in 1928 as evidence of the gradual expansion of representative business enterprises.

"I can feel only optimistic about the future course of business," said Mr. Parson today, "for the following reasons: Our agriculture products are being marketed at very advantageous prices, and the crops are good. Employment is at a low ebb in this country, and wages are at the highest standard.

"The standard of living for the people is the best that it ever was, and on account of this, there is more money being put in circulation for living necessities and luxuries.

"The export business of the country is improving, showing a balance in our favor each month, which indicates that our manufacturers are able to compete with the world markets. This has continued prosperity to the manufacturing lines.

"The main industries of the country, steel and automobiles, are being upgraded, with good prospects.

"In view of the above, I feel that the retail business of this country is looking forward to continued increased business for some time to come, and unless there is some upsetting influence in the early summer of 1928 on account of politics, look for very much better in 1928 than we have enjoyed this year."

The Woolworth retail store system, according to Mr. Parson, opened 105 new stores this year, making a total of 1585 stores operated in the United States and Canada, since 1480 operating during 1926. Robert M. Cowie, the president

REALISTIC CHURCH PAGEANT STAGED AS CHRISTMAS FEATURE

With life-sized sheep and camels and a cleverly constructed stable housing the Manger, what was perhaps the most elaborate Christmas program given by Xenia churches was presented at the First Presbyterian Church, Wednesday night.

The pantomime-pageant was presented on a specially constructed platform and enhanced by unusual lighting effects and costuming. A good crowd appreciated the performance and much credit was given the Rev. W. H. Tiltford, who wrote the pageant, constructed the stage arrangement and made lighting fixtures, costumes and other details of the Christmas play, and to Miss Josephine Armstrong, who directed the program. The pageant opened showing a tired mother and daughter in needy circumstances. The story of the Nativity followed, coming as a vision to the woman and her child, Virginia Kinsey took the part of the tired mother and Ruth Kato, the daughter, Katherine Kinsey, who was the narrator and Roy Siefert presided at the organ. The stable grotto and the scene of the Nativity furnished one impressive bit and the colorful uniforms of the Roman soldiers and other characters added realism to the story.

The story evolved around the White Gifts to the King and the present day need for kindness by unfortunates.

Mrs. James Wilson III directed the children of the primary department in their part of the program which was much enjoyed.

SET HEARING DATE FOR WIDENING PIKE

County Commissioners have selected January 18 at 10 a. m. as the date for the final hearing on the petition of J. W. Swadener, V. H. Moore and others to widen Interstate Highway No. 525, beginning at Old Town and extending northwest to the C. C. C. and St. Louis Railroad at Osborn. Commissioners approved $200 bond filed by the petitioners Wednesday and fixed January 16 at 10 a. m. as the date they will view the proposed improvement.

USE LIVING PERSON TO STUDY ANATOMY BY X-RAY METHOD
CHICAGO, Dec. 22.—Study of anatomy by using a living person as a subject has been inaugurated at Northwestern University following installation of a new type of X-ray apparatus.

"In the anatomical course," explained Professor W. F. Windle, of the department of Anatomy, "the new course makes possible the study of surface anatomy, for locating landmarks of deeper organs and for learning the action of muscles."

Students in the laboratories are now able to watch the process of food digestion and the position of the digestive tract in erect and recumbent positions and the relations and actions of the heart, lungs and diaphragm. The difference in the body arrangements of tall and short persons and the action of bones and joints may now be discerned in the classroom as well as growth changes in skeletons. The study of the living body is correlated through the employment of X-ray pictures which are displayed in a large illuminated cabinet.

"This innovation," added Professor Windle, "is in conformity with the modern trend toward making the science of anatomy living and vital rather than a mere discipline in traditional dissection."

By BEATRICE BURTON Author of

READ THIS FIRST:
LILY LEXINGTON, spoiled only daughter of the CYRUS LEXINGTON, is engaged to marry STALEY DRUMMOND, a rich bachelor. She throws him over a few days before the wedding to marry her mother's chauffeur, PAT FRANCE, and her family and friends all drop her.

Pat has invented a new kind of piston ring that he and his friend, ROY JETTERSON, intend to make and to market. Pat goes to work in Roy's garage and later the two men rent a tiny machine shop, where they intend to manufacture the ring. Lily, with no friends but SADY JETTERSON, Roy's wife, and Pat's parents and his sister, FLORENCE, finds life very dull indeed. The summer goes by with her working hard all day and every day learning to cook and wash and iron.

She welcomes an invitation from her former chum, SUE CAIN, to come and play bridge one afternoon. But she needs some new clothes and tries to charge them at Angouleme's shop where she has always bought clothes, only to learn that her mother has given orders that she can no longer charge things to her father. She takes the clothes out of the place anyway, and when a store detective comes for them, she telephones Staley Drummond in despair, and asks him to pay for them. He does—with his own check, and later Florence France, who takes the job of bookkeeper in Angouleme's see it and scolds Lily for letting Staley pay for her things. But she does not tell Pat about it.

Pat's former sweetheart, ELIZABETH ERTZ, sees Lily leaving Staley's car, but she says nothing to Pat about it. Roy Jetterson bumps into the two of them on the street, and he says nothing to Pat. One day when it is chilly, Staley buys Lily some fox furs, and that night Sadye Jetterson finds them in Lily's room and shows them to Pat and her husband. Pat thinks Lily has charged them, and she promises to take them back to the store where she got them. She returns them to Staley, who tells her she ought to leave Pat instead of staying on with him in the dull, hard-working existence they share. She makes up her mind that she will.

(Now Go On With The Story)
CHAPTER XLIII
Lily came home to the little flat that November night with her mind fully made up to leave it—and Pat—within the next day or two.

She made a little face as she sniffed the odor of frying cabbage and pork chops that filled the hall as she went up the steps. She fitted her key into the lock and stepped into the living room.

It was in darkness, and the second she put her foot over the threshold she knew that someone was there with her. . . There was no sound, no movement, nothing but darkness, and yet she knew it beyond a doubt.

She went cold all over, and her flesh began to creep.

And then, as she reached for the electric light switch, Pat's voice came to her from out of the darkness—"Lily!"

She knew it was his voice, and yet it was not like his voice. It was thick and low. It frightened her.

"What's the matter, Lover?" she found herself asking anxiously, as the light flashed up. . . and while she was saying it she told herself that that was no way to talk to a man whom she was about to give up for another man.

He was sitting in his easy chair, and his right arm was bandaged from shoulder to wrist with toils and folds of cotton gauze. His face was white and drawn. Looking at him, Lily knew how much she loved him—as she had not known it for a long time.

Instantly she was across the room and down on her knees beside him. "Why, darling, what's happened?"

He tried to smile as if whatever had happened did not matter. "Oh, I was trying to crank that car of Roy's and the thing flew back and gave me a nasty knock," he explained. "Broke my arm, the Doc says."

"And here you were, sitting all alone in the dark, while I was out gallivanting!" Lily told him, all pity and tenderness now, where a moment before she had been as hard and cold as steel. "Oh, Pat, I'm so sorry! What can I do for you?"

There were a dozen things that she might have done for him, if she had known what they were and how to do them. She might have tucked a pillow under the bandaged arm, in its splints and sling. She might have made him go to bed and she might have given him a glass of hot milk to make him sleep.

But Lily had none of the instincts of a nurse or a comforter. And so all she did was to put her arms around Pat and tell him how sorry she was, again and again, punctuating her words with quick kisses.

That was just what Pat wanted, however. He lay back in his chair with closed eyes and smiled peacefully.

running over her soft, bright hair as she sat on the floor with her head on his knees. "I've done all I could do on the piston ring, anyway, for a while, and we're going to try start selling them right after the first of the year. So there wasn't much for me to do right now except help Roy in the garage."

"Will he pay you your salary?" Lily asked, all thought of separation from Pat swept from her mind in this new surge of love for him. She would never leave him now, she told herself.

"Oh, he'll give me something," Pat answered easily. "Of course, he'll have to hire someone to take my place, and he hasn't any too much money right now."

"Why how can you say that when he just bought Sadye a new little car?" Lily broke in. "He'll just have to pay it. He's going to make plenty of money out of your invention after a while. That is, if it's a success."

Pat smiled. "Yes, but you don't believe it's going to be a success," he reminded her. "You think I waste my time down in the shop all day, you know."

Lily stopped him by laying her hand over his lips.

"Will you please be still, and not throw up to me all the best things I said last night?" she asked him. "I was just angry because you wouldn't let me keep those furs—I didn't really mean half the things I said to you."

Pat put his left arm around her, holding her tight, and both of them forgot the weeks of unhappiness they had just come through. . . just as people forget bodily pain as soon as it leaves them.

That night when Pat was asleep in bed, Lily wrote to Staley Drummond.

Today after I left you I made up my mind that I would go home and pack up my things," she told him in the little note that she scribbled, sitting at the kitchen table. "But when I got home I found Pat with a broken arm, and I am taking care of him. So, of course, I have changed all of my plans."

She signed her name to it, and read it over.

"There! That lets him down easily," she said to herself.

She took it down to the post box at the corner of Boyle street and dropped it in, sure, as she did it, that she was all through with Staley.

"If I love Pat so much that the sight of his arm in splints can make me feel like this, I'm certain I'll be better off married to him, even if we are wretchedly poor, that I would be divorced from him," she decided.

Before a week had gone by she began to regret mailing that letter.

For after a day or two it began to be very tiresome to have Pat hanging around the house from morning until night.

It was tiresome to have to help him shave and dress in the mornings. It was a bore and a bother to have to cut his food for him and to help him eat.

It got on her nerves to bend down a hundred times a day—it seemed a hundred times, at any rate—to pick up the ashes, the newspapers and the magazines that he dropped.

Worst of all, Roy and Sadye Jetterson took to dropping in on him every day. Usually they came at supper time, when Lily was at her busiest, and the house was looking very untidy.

gallon glass jar of broth from sink and began to unscure the "All right," she said evenly. "her breath began to come thick fast as her anger rose."

Then suddenly she threw the jar in both hands and hurled the direction of the open window. Her aim was poor, and it raved broken against the win sill or on the floor, but at that on Pat started across the kit and it caught him squarely in the right arm, just above the bow.

He never made a sound. His lips tightened back across teeth and he fell back against wall with his left hand clutch the bandages and the splints.

"Pat—Pat! I've hurt you! broken your arm again! Oh, rotten temper!" Lily wailed, ing what she had done instead. She rushed to him and tried to ram arms around him, but he sl her off.

"It's all right! It's nothing," said to her, and walked into living room, still holding his above the elbow.

A few minutes afterward heard him go out of the house, came home an hour and a half erin a taxicab, and his face white as his lips.

"The Doc's again. I've l down to the hospital," he said, ly looking at her.

"Did I break it with that? Oh, Lily asked, wringing her hand agony that was absolutely r. "Did I? Oh, Pat, tell me I did!"

"Don't think about it," was Pat would answer.

It was almost Christmas be he could use his arm at all again.

It was on the afternoon of Christmas eve that Lily had the surprise of her life.

It came in the late afternoon—the surprise—and it was f Staley Drummond.

It was a white pasteboard, and tied around it, under the sue paper wrappings, was one Staley's cards with a message d ed across it. It was his handwriting.

"This is to count the hours u we are together."

Feeling slightly dazed, Lily ed the box. Within it was a watch. It was of green ena starred with chip diamonds, there was a little diamond clasp the end of the chain.

The sight of it and of the brought Lily to her senses. Staley had not understood, f the letter she had written weeks before, that she had defn ly given him up! Evidently he still expecting her to leave the as soon as Pat was better!

She remembered nothing of letter except the last line she written: "So I have changed of my plans."

She stood, looking out of the v low at the cold gray sky and crossing branches of the bare bl trees.

"He thinks I meant that I pl were changed just for the t while Pat wasn't able to take of himself," she figured it all ou and all at once she knew that was glad he thought that.

"He still wants me," she said herself. "I won't spoil Pat's Christmas by telling him I'm going leave him—but I'll just go, after tomorrow."

ROOM IN ALL LINES OF INDUSTRY SAYS WOMAN ENGINEER

PARIS, Dec. 22.—"Woman needed today in every branch human activity," declares Madeleine Paris, a little French woman who has made a name for herself in a career which, not long ago, was tabooed to the fair sex.

Madeleine Paris is a qualified engineer and professor at Ecole des Arts et Metiers, France first industrial training college. She is also at the head of the Institut Electromechanique Femine, of which she is the founder. Within a short time she hopes to open a school for hospital nurses to further the science of electropathology and other reserve for women students of science.

She belonged to a family of means but was deterred from obtaining her degree of Bachelor of Science. After this, she attended the Superior School of Mechanical Engineering and became a qualified engineer and then determined to give other women the benefit of her experience. The first classes of the institute were opened in 1925. It specializes all work of precision, testing, laboratory research, designing and electrical engineers.

Mademoiselle Paris, moreover has found that, in many cases scientific training is preferable literary for many women. She sees that it provides a stabilizing influence on the feminine mind, strengthening the powers of judgment and putting them on a firmer basis.

The Theater

The old boy with the flowing beard and reindeer chariot has the movie folks every bit as much excited as the rest of the world. Movie stars wearied from twelve months of grimacing and emoting before the camera are as busy as the rest of us making plans for their big holiday-Christmas.

For instance, Foll Negri is reported all set with her plans for spending the dear, old Yuletide in New York. Wallace Beery has planned a big "open house" with Raymond Hatton, Louise Brooks and other cinema celebrities as guests. Esther Ralston is to be hostess to Bebe Daniels, Florence Vidor, the Chester Conklines, Richard Arlen and his wife, Jobyna Ralston, Charles Rogers, Thelma Todd and others.

Plains, N. Y., for an order to punish Conway for contempt of court for alleged failure to pay $2,300 alimony arrears. Tearle is reported to be at his Hollywood home with his second wife, the former Adele Rowland.

Renee Adoree, French peasant girl in "The Big Parade" Irish lass in "Blarney" and China maid in "Mr. Wu" will be the Russian heroine in John Gilbert's new vehicle, "The Cossacks."

Clara Bow has arranged a nifty little dinner for a number of cinema friends. Harold Lloyd plans a quiet day with the Mrs. and their baby. Richard Dix on Christmas Day will be out on the briny with a yachting party. Adolphe Menjou will spend his Christmas with his mother, and is expecting his brother, Henry, home from college. W. C. Fields is throwing a bachelor dinner for such chaps as Gary Cooper, William Powell, Lane Chandler and William Austin. Mary Brian is going to Dallas for a few days.

Mrs. Josephine Park Tearle, former wife of Conway Tearle, has applied to supreme court at White

ALASKA WILL BREED HARDY CATTLE FOR RIGOROUS CLIMATE

SEWARD, Alaska, Dec. 22.—Using as a nucleus native Alaskan stock it is proposed to establish a hardy breed of cattle capable of withstanding the rigors of the Arctic as easily as does the caribou. The native cattle are to be taken from St. Augustine island, in the Aleutian group, placed on Sitkalidak island and there crossed with pure bred Herefords, only the female native stock being used.

These wild Alaskan cattle, representing the farthest west cattle range in the world, were placed on St. Augustine island a half century ago by the Russians. Despite the rigors of the winter climate the animals survived and the herd grew in magnitude until at present it is dangerous for man to penetrate the island owing to the vicious wild bulls.

Jack McCord, who has stocked Sitkalidak island with sheep and cattle is preparing to undertake the breeding experiment as soon as the necessary permission can be secured for capturing stocking animals. Already he has the farthest west cattle ranch, where herds are thriving.

AUTO DRIVER SUED FOR $5,000 DAMAGES DUE TO COLLISION

Claiming she is permanently disfigured as a result of an auto accident on the Dayton-Xenia Pike between the Treheim railroad crossing and a bridge spanning the Little Miami River November 18, 1927, while she was riding as a passenger and invited guest in the defendant's car, Hannah Allen has brought suit for $5,000 damages against Henry Washington in Common Pleas Court.

Plaintiff attributes the accident to negligence on the part of the defendant. Washington's car, going toward Dayton, collided with a Packard being driven in the opposite direction the petition declares.

Washington drove his car in such a manner as to cause it to skid into the Packard, plaintiff charges. Furthermore, he was driving on the wrong side of the road, she alleges.

Plaintiff sets forth that she was riding in the front seat and that her head came into contact with some part of the car so violently that she was rendered unconscious.

She claims that one of her upper front teeth was knocked out, another tooth broken; she sustained deep cuts on the upper lip and left cheek, which bled profusely, and that she was taken to a Xenia hospital where the lip was stitched.

She also sustained other minor cuts on the chin and face, one knee was badly bruised and severe nervous shock resulted, it is claimed.

Plaintiff was unable to resume her employment for two weeks, the petition declares. She asserts that the cut on her cheek has not healed, that her upper lip is inflamed and swollen and she believes she will be permanently disfigured because of the cut lip.

Attorney Charles L. Darlington represents the plaintiff.

TWO WANT DIVORCE

Charging extreme cruelty, John L. Robinson has filed suit for divorce from Hazel W. Robinson in Common Pleas Court.

Plaintiff declares his wife has been keeping company with other men and that he bore the humiliation and disgrace until December 7, when he caught her riding in an auto with a gentleman friend. Plaintiff declares he left home after this incident.

They were married December 23, 1922. No children were born of the marriage.

DRAMA PUPILS GIVE PLAYS AT SCHOOL

Under the direction of Miss Esther Muriel Smith, two plays were presented by the dramatic art department of Central Senior and Junior High School at an assembly in Jean B. Elwell Auditorium, Wednesday afternoon.

Junior High students participated in a clever play entitled "Great Caesar," a travesty on Julius Caesar and having as the stage setting, a barn hayloft. The lines were unusually amusing.

Upper class students then presented the second play, entitled, "Speaking to Father."

Students were charged an admission of ten cents to see the plays. The proceeds will be used to defray the expense of the plays and to further additional auditorium features for students in the future, possibly including motion pictures later in the school year.

Write a "Bri-nee" with old cap Heiney

HERE'S A SAMPLE "BRI-NEE"

I'm Cap Heiney of the Bri-nee

I fly the pirate flag;

You're good as sunk,

You'll walk the plank

If you don't buy a bag.

Until further notice, The Beebe Co., of Cincinnati, Ohio, will pay $5.00 each for all acceptable Bri-nee rhymes. Every 25c Home Package of Bri-nees contains the kind of a "Bri-nee" that makes us pay—and Pay—and PAY.

We're the boys who put the salt in Bri-nees. Maybe you can guess how we did it and also who put the salt in the ocean and the ocean so close to the shore. But how'd we do it? Go on and guess. How'd the heck we do it? But anyhow, we don't believe anybody cares a continental cuss, just so long as they can get enough Bri-nees. They're all salty inside the shell. TEASINGLY SALTY, always FRESH ROASTED, simply de-licious.
